Second Sunday of Lent - 5th March 2023 Year A

Genesis 12:1-4

Psalms 33

2Timothy 1:8-10

Matthew 17:1-9

the radicalness of faith

Jesus is approaching his 'exodus' – his 'passover'. His death won't mark the end of his mission. We are to understand his death in light of his resurrection. That's what the so-called 'transfiguration' episode in today's gospel reading, invites us to do. Jesus transfigured – his face radiant and his clothes dazzling white – anticipates the Passover light. His death will not be the triumph of darkness! The power of death has been overcome.

Life and death, hardship and immortality, remain inextricably mixed in the present world. For the author, (2Timothy 1:8-10) apostles and believers are to firmly face the struggles which arise from this. Jesus, before them, knew of such struggles. An authentic apprenticeship into the skills of faithful living, in Jesus' way, is rendered impossible if a teacher/preacher of the good news does not accept her share of the hardship of an apostles' calling. Such is the authentic response of would be teachers/preachers, to GOD's saving activity and call to be holy.

The cloud in the Scriptures is an image of GOD's presence. GOD accompanied the people in the shape of a cloud during the Exodus. In Sinai, GOD appeared surrounded by clouds.

When the Temple in Jerusalem was established, it was said that GOD's presence filled the Temple like a mist. That's also the reason the gospels report that at Jesus' ascension, he was enveloped by cloud. The cloud is something visible and yet limits visibility. That is why it's an image of GOD, who is revealed to us and at the same time is hidden from us. Or, rather, it is revealed to us as mystery.

The voice from the cloud repeats the baptismal proclamation about Jesus, with the addition of the command "listen to him". The latter is a reference to Dt.18:15 in which the Israelites are commanded to listen to the prophet like Moses whom the LORD will raise up for them. The command to listen to Jesus is general, but in this context it probably applies particularly to the preceding predictions of his passion and resurrection, and of his coming.

The passage says the disciples were enveloped by the mystery of GOD. Jesus is the WORD of GOD made flesh on earth. The message of GOD that we should love one another. That's the WORD that the cloud says we must hear. The disciples found out that Jesus was the messiah (vv.6-8). Afterwards, he revealed to them that the messiah must suffer and die. It seems that Jesus makes them see that, through his death, he would have a glorious transformation. - BF

“Listen to Jesus and follow Him. That’s the message of the transfiguration”.
Pope Francis
